

CIGARS

“HECHO A MANO”

www.friendshipmarket.net

Cigar Ashtray
24357 - 1049316

Cigar Ashtray
24357 - 1050742

Cigar Ashtray
25020 - 1055505

Cigar Ashtray
24105 - 655923

Cigar Ashtray
24356 - 1049318

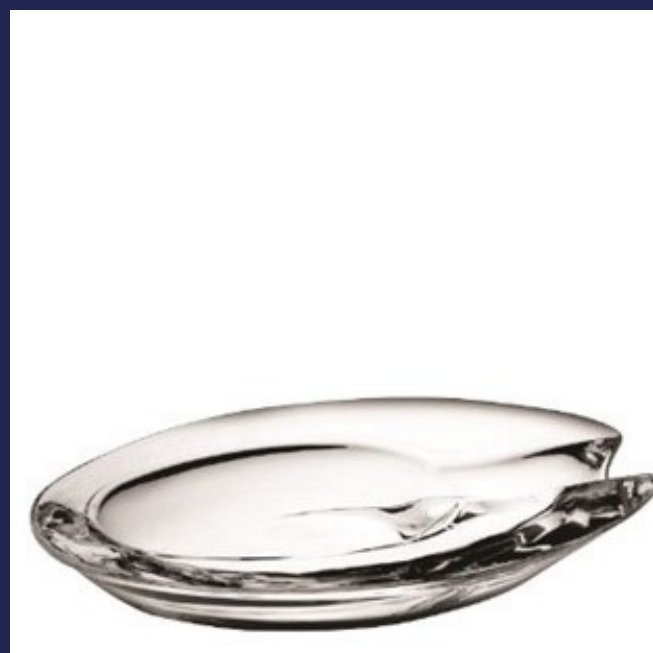

Cigar Ashtray
24356 - 1050746

Cigar Ashtray
24106 - 1055058

Cigar Ashtray
24029 - 1055519

Ashtray 18860 -
1011743

Ashtray 24421 -
1091092

Ashtray 13505 -
288009

Cigarette Ashtrays

Bistro 54126

Height: 37 mm

Mouth Diameter: 72 mm

Base Diameter: 53.50 mm

Bistro 54036

H: 34 mm. 1 1/4"

T: 107 mm. 107"

B: 83 mm . 3 1/4".

D: 107 mm. 4 1/4"

Bistro 54046

H: 39,5 mm. 1 1/2"

T: 144 mm. 144"

B: 119 mm . 4 3/4".

D: 144 mm. 5 3/4"

Köşem 54076

Height: 33 mm.

Mouth Diameter: 110 mm.

Base Diameter: 91 mm.

When we look at the history of humanity that we know, people have always had a sense of pleasure, let alone the hardship of living conditions. As the centuries pass, we move from cave life to communal life. Needs change, lives evolve, but the concepts of pleasure and luxury begin to take their place in memories.

Pleasure first takes its place in human history in various ways. This sometimes emerges as alcohol, and the emergence of alcohol, in addition to pleasure, also enabled the body to meet the dirty drinking water without harm with the discovery of fermentation and distillation methods in periods when there was no healthy water. Rituals, sacred ceremonies, worship (actually, they all come to the same thing), special days, funerals and rituals in celebrations have made it believed that these pleasure substances are directly proportional to holiness over time. The cigar is also the product of such a ritual. Tobacco leaves, which contain both holiness, are considered sacred by the Taino natives and are dried and hung around their necks, and are also enjoyable and relaxing. Today, tobacco products have lost their sacredness, but they continue to exist as a need for luxury and pleasure. And yet, when you want pleasure to touch your life, cigars offer you a taste beyond life with their magnificent creation ritual.

www.friendshipmarket.net